Come curious. ✡ Leave wiser.
JCCPGH ISRAEL ENGAGEMENT SERIES

JCC's 4th Come Curious Event Unpacks Israeli Election

For those who think Israel's upcoming election is ONLY about October 7, Gaza and the war with Iran, no one would blame them.

On Monday, November 2, the evening before the U.S. midterm elections, the Jewish Community Center of Greater Pittsburgh will hold an event that will be a deeper debate about how Israel's identity, democracy and future is unfolding, with implications for its relationship with the United States.
That will be at the heart of our next Come Curious. Leave Wiser. conversation, held just days after Israelis head to the polls. Three influential voices with different perspectives and deep ties to Israeli politics will travel from Israel to Pittsburgh and explore what's at stake.

The JCC's Come Curious. Leave Wiser. series is educational and nonpartisan; no speaker or program implies endorsement of any political party, candidate, policy, or single viewpoint. Over the course of the 6-part series, participants are presented with a wide range of perspectives, some of which they may agree with, and some they may strongly disagree with. That tension is part of the intended learning and ideally will strengthen our communal muscle for constructive dialogue across differences.
